1. During the week-end of 14 October 1950, large-scale Soviet troop movements began in Hungary. Three or four divisions (sic), composed of troops of Baltic or White Russian origin, have been returned to the Soviet Union; their destination is said to be the Crimea or the Caucasus. Russian officers told their Hungarian acquaintances that they must now learn the Turkish language, and that for this purpose they have already received instruction pamphlets.
2. The units returned to the USSR are being replaced by other "divisions" coming from Siberia and eastern Turkestan, but officered by White Russians.
3. It is reported that the Hungarian Army is organizing four new divisions. Logistic preparations for this expansion are under way. The new divisions are to be fully mobilized and equipped within two months.
4. The Hungarian partisan organization has entered a "pre-war" phase: its members have received arms and munitions from partisan headquarters.
